WILL DISBAND MARION GUARD OUTFIT NOV. 4

Members of Co. B, 166th Infantry, To Be Mustered Out; Henderson Issues Order.

ORGANIZED HERE IN 1919

Outfit To Be Reorganized in Columbus as Rifle Unit.

The disbanding of Co. B, 166th infantry of the Ohio National Guard, was announced this morning by Police Chief William E. Marks, who is also captain of the company. The announcement followed the receipt of orders from Brig. Gen. Frank D. Henderson, adjutant of Ohio, in which he requests the disbanding of the company on Wednesday, Nov. 4.

To Be Reorganized

Following its disbanding here, the company will be reorganized in Columbus with the same letter and regiment, Chief Marks said this morning, and will be quartered at the Greenwood avenue armory. The desire to transfer the company to Columbus, eliminating the congestion at the Marion armory, was given as the possible reason for the disbanding order. Marion is the only city in the state of its size with two military companies and because of the limited space at the armory, made it difficult for two companies to function properly. The company to be disbanded was equipped with rifles while Co. D, the second company at the armory is a machine gun company.

The company was organized as Co. D by Gilbert Paschall on July 5, 1919. It was designated as Howitzer Co. 166th Inf. on April 1, 1921.

Marks Made Captain

Following the promotion of Captain Paschall to major in 1923, First Sergeant Stewart H. Irvine was chosen as captain. Upon his resignation in 1926, Carl F. Ebert was chosen captain and served until 1928 when Police Chief Marks was made captain of the company.

Other officers of the company are Lester L. Plotner, first lieutenant, and Arthur Amick, second lieutenant. Plotner is the only member of the original organization, having served with the company almost constantly since its organization following the World war.

Other junior officers of the company have been John Dutton and Elmer E. Smith, first lieutenants, and Harold H. Kellog and H. Thomas, second lieutenants.

OUTLINES PLAN TO BREAK EDISON WILL

Only Part of Instrument To Be Attacked, Son Says.

By The Associated Press

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 31—William L. Edison, who announced he would contest the will of his father, Thomas A. Edison, said today that he would not attack the entire instrument.

Edison, one of two sons by the inventor's first wife, said that he would contest only that provision relating to the handling and distribution of the bequest left to him.

In a formal statement yesterday, Edison characterized the will as "unfair," and charged undue influence had been brought to bear by his stepmother and his half brother, Charles.

In his statement today, Edison said some reports concerning the matter that have been attributed to him had not been made or authorized by him.

"I wish to emphasize the fact," said Edison, "that I have made no statement other than the one given the press yesterday. Such statements quoted in papers this morning with figures or stated amounts are absolutely unauthorized and untrue.

"I have no intention of breaking the entire will of my father, but I do object to those provisions as to the handling and distribution of the amount left to me."

MINE COMMITTEES NAMED BY WHITE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31—Permanent committees representing the United Mine workers and Ohio coal operators will confer further with Governor George White in his efforts to better conditions in the state's mining industry.

The committees were named at the governor's suggestion, following the conclusion of a two-day conference with the operators and union leaders yesterday. Governor White said he would set the dates for the additional conferences after his recovery from a broken collar bone, suffered in an automobile accident recently.

Other items to announce the committee appointments, the chief executive declined to discuss the results of his initial attempt to stabilize the industry by ending the bargaining discord between the miners and their employers. His mind, however, by was improved by the willingness of both sides to cooperate with him.

ONE of three candidates will be placed at the helm of municipal affairs for a two-year period beginning Jan. 1, 1932, when Marion voters go to the polls Tuesday. The mayoralty contest is holding the limelight in the city contests as the election day nears.

W. C. Phillians, Republican, and Jesse A. Warrick, Independent, are challenging Mayor L. Don Jones' bid for reelection. All three candidates have been actively campaigning several weeks, and all three are optimistic over the outcome.

Phillians is 59, lives at 709 east Center street, is a former council president and for 10 years was manager of the Richman Bros. store here.

Mayor Jones is asking for his second term. He is 40, lives at 131 south Grand avenue, is a past commander of the American Legion post and a past exalted ruler of the Elks.

Warrick is 61, and is a carpenter and contractor residing at 213 Benton place. He is a native of Richwood, but has lived here 36 years. He has erected many buildings in Marion, including the Waddell Ladies' Home.

2 POSTAL EMPLOYES JOIN RETIRED LIST

Mason Weaver and C. G. Francis Leave Service of Local Office Today.

With the close of business today at the Marion postoffice, two veteran employes, Mason Weaver and C. G. Francis, will bring to a close their services of more than a quarter of a century in the capacity of carriers and clerks. The men, both of whom are 67 years of age, will be retired on pensions, in accordance with government regulations.

Mr. Weaver rounded out his thirty-sixth year of service April 10, this year, most of which was spent as carrier in the business district of the city. He succeeded Charles Clark, one of the four original city carriers of the staff. At this time the postoffice was located in the McNeal-Wolford block on west Center street and the work called for two deliveries a day. The carrier window was kept open until 6:30 p. m. to accommodate business men and persons wishing to call for their mail and on Sundays from 11 a. m. until 12:30 p. m.

Mr. Weaver entered the service April 10, 1895, as a substitute carrier and was appointed a regular carrier May 21 of the same year. He succeeded Miss Sarah Barker as forwarding clerk Nov. 5, 1923, which position he filled until the present time.

Mr. Francis entered the service June 5, 1905, as a substitute carrier and was appointed a regular carrier Jan. 1, 1907. He served as a regular carrier until Jan. 1, 1923, when he was transferred to the general delivery and stamp windows.

Delivered in Buggy

Mr. Francis' route as carrier took him on the outskirts of the city and his deliveries were made with a horse and buggy. His trips took him to the eastern part of the city on the forenoon delivery and to the western part of the city in the afternoon.

Mr. Weaver lives at 262 south High street, is married and has one son, Donald, at home. He is a member of Marion Lodge No. 70, F. and A. M. He was born in Lebanon and came to Marion in 1868.

Mr. Francis resides at 208 Kensington place, is married and has two sons, Kelsey D. Francis of Cleveland and Richard Francis of Memphis, Tenn. He was born in Waldo. He is a member of the Universalist church at Caledonia and Canby Temple No. 51, Knights of Pythias.

TO PLACE WREATHS ON HARDING TOMB

Sons of Veterans Will Honor Memory of President on Anniversary.

The anniversary of the birth date of President Harding will be observed by ceremonies at Harding Memorial Sunday and Monday.

Following a custom established last year, the Ohio Department of the Sons of Veterans of the Civil war, will place a wreath on the late President's grave Sunday afternoon. The department observes the birth dates of all Ohio Presidents similarly.

C. W. High of Columbus will act as chairman and Judge Cecil J. Randall will deliver the memorial address. The Buckeye Republican glee club will sing under direction of Karl R. Hoenig, and Department Commander Clarence H. Weber will place a floral wreath on the tomb, according to the program prepared for the services. The services will begin at 2:30. Although the birthday anniversary of the President falls on Monday this year, the veterans chose Sunday for the services for convenience of members.

A wreath from President Hoover to be placed on the memorial Monday arrived yesterday at the office of Hoke Donithen, secretary of the Harding Memorial association. It will be placed on the tomb without ceremony.

In keeping with their annual custom, Cincinnati Boy Scouts will send two uniformed Scouts to Marion Monday to place a wreath on the tomb.

Money Goes Begging.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31—The Citizens Telephone company of Circleville has been trying to give money away without success, and asked the state utilities commission what to do about it. The company reported that checks for $567 were sent in refunds, the difference between a temporary and permanent rate, had not been cashed, and $90 remained unclaimed. A fund of $540 was ordered set up to assist any refunds claimants that might be found.

HOOVER SEES EVIDENCE OF BETTER TIMES

Sharp Upward Swing in Public Confidence Noted by President.

MONEY HOARDING AT END

Bank Situation Improves; British Business Also on Upgrade.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 — A sharp upward swing in public confidence which has led already to a cessation of money hoarding and the end of small bank failures is seen by President Hoover.

Almost exactly two years after deflation of the stock market began in 1929, the chief executive cited yesterday a "very great change" for the better in credit conditions with its practical effect evidenced by a recovery in wheat and cotton prices.

Flow Returning to Banks

"Evidence over the last week indicates that not only has hoarding ceased, but actually $24,000,000 of hoarded money has returned to the banks," Mr. Hoover said.* The small bank failures have almost ceased*foreign exchanges are returned to a basis at which it is no longer advantageous to ship gold abroad.

"The practical effect of this recovery is shown in an increase in the price of wheat by 10 cents a bushel and cotton by $15 to $20 a bale."

Opening his remarks to newspaper men at his regular Friday conference, the President said he was "happy to note the very great change which is evident in the credit situation" since announcement on Oct. 7 of plans for the half-billion dollar credit pool to strengthen banks.

Obviously he was happy. Economic conditions have occupied his time for months almost to the exclusion of other questions. But not in some time has he had so many of what he considered favorable signs of changes for the better.

Adds to Statement

Although he held a prepared statement before him, he departed from it several times to emphasize his view of conditions. As he read of "a wave of great apprehension" in the United States following suspension of the gold standard in England, he added extemporaneously that the real volume of this apprehension had not been appreciated by the average American citizen.

REVIVAL IN BRITAIN

Industry Picks Up Since Gold Standard Suspends.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 31—The story of an industrial revival in Great Britain since the suspension of the gold standards occupied a prominent place in the newspaper today.

The pick-up was said to be especially noticeable in the cotton and textile industries, with iron, steel, coal and pottery showing improvement, though to a less extent.

KING IS REELECTED TO NATIONAL BOARD

Marion Man Again Named Ohio Director for Manufacturers' Association.

C. B. King, vice president of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., and president of the Ohio Manufacturers' association, was reelected a state director for Ohio of the National Association of Manufacturers for 1932 at the thirty sixth annual meeting of the organization concluded at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York City last night, according to news dispatches from New York.

Although not present at the annual meeting, Mr. King plans to attend a special meeting of the board Dec. 18 in New York when the directors will be installed and executive officers of the association are chosen.

Mr. King is now vice president of the association, and has represented this state on the board of directors for 10 years.

URGE SUPPORT OF ONE-MILL CITY LEVY

Say Special Issue Only Solution to Marion's Welfare Problem This Winter.

Pointing out that the proposed one-mill city levy for poor relief purposes is the only possible means by which additional funds can be raised to cope with the winter's welfare needs, H. B. Weller, president of the Family Welfare society, and Mayor L. Don Jones today made a final appeal for voters to support the levy Tuesday at the polls.

Practically all Marion organizations and clubs have gone on record to support the levy, and an intensive campaign has been made by voluntary committees of the levy. Heads of charity organizations who have been in close touch with welfare work here have pointed to the levy as the backbone of the entire welfare program in Marion.

If passed, the levy will raise approximately $50,000 to be distributed through the city poor relief department. On the ballot, the levy is listed for operating expenses of the city, as required by law. However, officials have pledged that the proceeds of the levy shall be used for poor relief purposes.

[illegible] in the event the levy is defeated, the welfare department will be forced to [illegible] relief [illegible] the present [illegible] of the year.

WILLIAM LEMKE, a rural mail carrier and a farmer of near Kirkpatrick, shown at the left in the accompanying photograph, will be the Marion county contender for the state corn husking championship when the state's 12 best huskers meet at Springfield Nov. 4.

Lemke's record of more than 20 bushels of corn husked in an hour and twenty minutes overshadows the mark of O. Kellerhals of Willard, who won the Huron county title Thursday by husking 17 bushels and 59 pounds of corn in an hour and twenty minutes.

Standing at the right of the Marion county champ is his brother, Paul Lemke, who won second place in the Marion county contest last Wednesday in which seven men took part.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS BRIGHTER

Reports Say Other Nations Must Turn to U. S. and Canada for Wheat.

EUROPE'S SUPPLY DOWN

Prospects of Shortage Cause Rise in Quotations in America.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 31—Good news was current for farmers and other holders of wheat today.

Reports were circulated that buyers of the world's breadstuffs will have to turn to the United States and Canada for large quantities of wheat before the next harvests of the northern hemisphere. These reports said. The grain bins of Europe held only four weeks' supply.

This feeling of an impending shortage, or at least of a restoration of normal relationship of world supply and demand, apparently had its effect on the trading on the Chicago board of trade yesterday. Prices went to the season's highest peak. Future deliveries rose from 2¼ cents to 2⅝ cents a bushel, May wheat closing at 64½.

Rise Continues Today

Grain prices continued to climb today. A rush of buying orders for wheat futures induced by reported efforts of Russia to buy back contracts for grain shipments, caused early upturns of as much as 1½ cents.

After a half hour's trading, December wheat was changing hands at 60½, which was from ¾ to 1⅛ cents above yesterday's close.

Wheat has been crawling steadily upward since the low was established Oct. 5. Future quotations are now 16 cents or more than 30 per cent above the low figure, and corn and rye have had even more spectacular advances.

IOWA PLANS CORN SALE

Citizens Asked To Join in Move To Revive Lazy Dollar.

By The Associated Press

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 31—Iowa is getting ready to put millions of lazy dollars to work with a state-wide corn selling campaign.

The plan, which is to be put into effect early in November, involves the sale of millions of dollars of Iowa corn at 60 cents a bushel.

Every person in the state who makes $2,400 or more annually will be requested to participate by purchasing at least one unit of 100 bushels. Farmers may purchase if they wish, the sponsors of the idea estimating that it will mean from $2,000,000 to $10,000,000 to them in one form or another.

Purchasers are to receive warehouse receipts and the corn will be placed in warehouses in accordance with the state law. Congress will be asked to file interests which must be exchanged with their local merchants for consideration within 30 days after receiving payment. The merchants in turn will redeem them for goods or services from the plan.

Harding, Mansfield Clash Today in Annual Grid Battle

PRESIDENTS OUT TO HAND TYGERS FIRST BEATING OF SEASON

Murphymen Favored, However, To Defeat Red and Black Combine.

Somewhat crippled by injuries of several members on the first string eleven, Harding High school today was scheduled to clash with the unbeaten Mansfield Tygers on Fairground field. The opening kickoff was called for 2:30 p. m. The game is one of a pair today between members of the North Central Ohio league. Galion and Ashland oppose each other in the second league encounter on the Ashland gridiron. Bucyrus is booked to play Kenton in a non-league charity game at Bucyrus.

Harding will go into the Mansfield game a decided underdog but despite this fact is expected to put up a valiant battle against the Men of Murphy. Injuries will undoubtedly handicap the Presidents but they have been keyed to a fighting spirit during this week's practice and are likely to play an improved brand of ball. Harding has apparently developed a habit of turning in at least one whirlwind game each season and usually against Mansfield. However, past performances will not count today against the Tygers. A Harding victory or even a tie will have to be considered in the realm of an upset.

Dewey Bohyer, charge de affairs of the Red and Black announced a probable starting lineup that included all but one of his erstwhile regulars. Junior Clay may not start but it is doubtful if this is due as much to an ankle injury as to the fact that Bob Foltz has been consistently outplaying him at the right tackle post. Pickarel, right end, and Morgan, quarterback, both expected to be out with injured shoulders, were nominated by Bohyer to start the game. Barring last minute shifts the teams will lineup as follows.

Harding	Pos.	Mansfield
McDaniel	LE	McMullen
Firstenberger	LT	Fredericks
Texas	LG	Smith
Williams	C	Fichter
Clark	RG	Ohle

NATIONAL GRIDIRON HONORS AT STAKE

Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech Fray at Pittsburgh Tops Heavy Schedule of Games.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 — North, south, east and west, college football teams sallied forth again today to further clarify national and sectional championship alignments.

One outstanding candidate for national honors, Notre Dame was a distinct center of popular interest for the Ramblers were matched against Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh in one of the big-time struggles of the day.

Despite a heavy intersectional slate, particularly in the east, there was just as much interest in half a dozen crucial encounters with the east, the Big Ten, the Southwest conference and the Southern conference.

In the east, two unbeaten and untied elevens, Cornell and Columbia, were squared off against one another at Ithaca, N. Y., Yale's Bulldogs, improving fast, tackled Dartmouth's Indians; Holy Cross played Brown, Lafayette sought to halt Penn; Pitt tangled with Penn State; Georgetown was opposed to Boston college and Villanova stacked up against the tough Bucknell Bisons.

Southern Shed Heavy

In the south, a heavy conference schedule was topped by the meeting of Florida and Georgia's rampant Bulldogs. Tulane and Tennessee, co-leaders with Georgia, took things a bit easier against Mississippi A. & M. and Duke respectively. Vanderbilt anticipated victory against Georgia Tech and Alabama hoped to stop Kentucky, unbeaten but tied by Maryland. Virginia Poly was Maryland's foe, and North Carolina played North Carolina state. Sewanee drew Louisiana state for another conference engagement.

In the Big Ten, the struggle between Wisconsin and Minnesota looked closest with Northwestern, Purdue and Ohio State favored over Illinois, Chicago, and Indiana respectively. Nebraska looked much too strong for Missouri in the Big Six and Oklahoma was favored over Iowa State despite the improvement in the Ames' outfit Kansas went outside the conference to clash with Oklahoma A. & M.

Other Games

Southern Methodist and Texas were pitted against each other in the southwest feature, the only other conference game sending Texas Christian against Arkansas. In the Pacific coast conference, championship games involved Washington State and Oregon State on the one hand, and Stanford and the University of California at Los Angeles in the other. Colorado Aggies' struggle with the champion Utah Indians headlined the Rocky Mountain conference card; Brigham Young played Colorado Teachers and Western State tackled Denver.

The national intersectional slate, in addition to Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech combat included games involving Oregon and New York university; Colorado College and Army; Virginia and Harvard; Michigan and Princeton; Kansas Aggies and West Virginia; Mississippi College and Colgate; George State (Bowdon) and Davis & Elkins, all in the east; Syracuse and Michigan State, Loyola (La.) and Detroit, and George Washington and Iowa, all in the midwest; and Tex. & M. and Centenary in the south.

65,000 PERSONS TO SEE IRISH CONFLICT

Carnegie Tech Has Little Hope of Beating Notre Dame Eleven.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31—A spirited Carnegie Tech eleven today faced the kick-off of the game for which it has been preparing all season—the annual battle with Notre Dame.

Though few in the crowd of 65,000, which is expected to see the struggle would be willing to wager that the cause of Carnegie is not altogether hopeless, the plaid, harking back to their victories over the Irish in 1926 and 1928, promised to wage a brilliant fight.

Cold, crisp weather was forecast.

Just before the opening whistle the throng and players will stand with bared heads in silent tribute to the late Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's great coach, who died in an airplane accident last spring.

After a snappy drill at the stadium yesterday, Senior Coach Hunk Anderson pronounced his team in excellent condition. The Tartans, little the worse for their bruising battle with Purdue last Saturday, also had every "regular" in line.

The probable line-up:

Notre Dame	Po.	Carnegie
Kosky	LE	Stewart
Krause	LT	Fletcher
Greeney	LG	Semple
Yarr (C)	C	Ducanis
Hoffman	RG	Heinzer
Kurth	RT	Forsman

BUCKEYES FAVORED TO DEFEAT INDIANA

Rain-Soaked Gridiron Likely To Hamper Attack of Both Teams.

By The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 31—Ohio State's fast, heavy team was the favorite over Indiana university in their Big Ten football game before a homecoming crowd here today. The Buckeyes were seeking to atone for their defeat by Northwestern last week, while the Hoosiers had not yet lost a Big Ten game.

A two-day rain that soaked the Memorial stadium gridiron caused trepidation in both camps. Indiana feared for its aerial attack, while Coach Sam Willaman of Ohio State pointed out his players had not yet played in mud. The Buckeye line outweighed its opponents six pounds to the man.

Probable lineups:

Ohio State	Pos.	Indiana

OFFERS $2,500,000 TO GIANTS' OWNERS

By United Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—Norman Perry, owner of the Indianapolis American association baseball team, is in the market for a major league franchise and is reported to be willing to pay $2,500,000 for the New York Giants.

Perry and Jack Hendricks, his chief adviser, conferred with owner Charles Stoneham of the Giants this week. Stoneham has displayed no anxiety to sell the Giants. Perry also is reported to be considering offers for the Cincinnati Reds, Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago White Sox.

Expect Big Crowds.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 31— Huge crowds were expected today at the leading eastern football games. At Pittsburgh 65,000 were to see the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech game, while 37,000 was the estimated crowd at the Yale-Dartmouth tilt in New Haven. About 25,000 were to see Oregon play New York University in Yankee stadium here.

Declines Fight Offer.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 — Jack Sharkey apparently is determined to do no more fighting this year. The Boston sailor man has turned down an offer to meet Tommy Loughran in the headline attraction of the Christmas fund show at Madison Square garden, Dec. 11.

My WINNING PLAY

For close to three decades, "Uncle Dan" McGugin has been turning out football teams at Vanderbilt university. His well drilled elevens of recent years have had a large bearing on the rise of southern football to a position of national prominence. In this, the eighth of a series of football articles written by outstanding coaches themselves, McGugin describes a play used against teams shifting to meet the Commodore's unbalanced backfield.

By DAN McGUGIN
(Head Football Coach, Vanderbilt University)
By The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—It is customary for defensive lines to shift somewhat to meet an unbalanced backfield.

As an example, when the offensive backfield has its greatest strength on the right side, there is a tendency for the defensive lines to shift somewhat to their left.

This leaves the weakest place in the defensive line in front of the offensive left tackle and left guard.

Vanderbilt has a play designed to take advantage of this situation. It is worked in this manner:

The left guard blocks the defensive right guard in toward center. The left tackle and end block the defensive right tackle out.

The ball is snapped to the fullback who is to the right of the center in the unbalanced backfield alignment. The back directly behind center runs to the left as a threat for a lateral pass. The lone back on the left side of the center blocks the defensive right end out if he is coming in. Otherwise he goes on down the field to block the secondary.

After receiving the ball from center the fullback follows the remaining back who was farthest to the right through the hole made between the offensive left tackle and left guard.

Fortune, Vanderbilt fullback, made repeated gains last year with this play, getting three gains of 12 yards or more in the game between Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt.

The left end shoots down the field to keep the defensive right halfback in his territory, while the left tackle, and the left guard pulls out to protect the passer.

After snapping the ball back to the fullback, the center checks the defensive right guard. The right end drives deep into enemy territory and decoys the defensive left halfback down the field.

One halfback swings into the territory abandoned by the defensive left halfback and receives a pass from the fullback, who has faded back five yards after receiving the ball from center.

The other halfback swings wide and is in a position to take a lateral from his mate who received the forward from the fullback. The quarterback also swings wide to the right and follows up the play to be in position to receive a possible second lateral.

Big 10 Battles Featured by Traditional Rivalries

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 31—Traditional rivalries, with championship hopes riding on the outcome of one of the oldest featured today's western conference football schedule.

Minnesota and Wisconsin, meeting for the fortieth time, were matched at Minneapolis, and another week of life in the Big Ten title race was the reward for the victor. They appeared closely matched, with the Gophers presenting a fine running and passing attack, and the Badgers relying on a powerful line. A capacity attendance of 58,000 was almost certain.

Illinois was at Northwestern's hopeful but with anything but confident of victory over the Wildcats. Northwestern had not been defeated this season, while Illinois had dropped both its Big Ten starts with Purdue and Michigan.

Indiana, highly encouraged by its one-sided victory over Chicago last week, was given an outside chance against the best Ohio State eleven in recent seasons, with a homecoming crowd of 20,000 looking on, and Purdue was favored to hand Chicago another mauling, before a somewhat exclusive attendance of less than 10,000.

Iowa was host to George Washington university of Washington, D. C., and was expected to score its first victory of the season, and incidentally its first points. Michigan was in the east to open a series with Princeton and was a big favorite. Notre Dame was in the east for its initial appearance of the season in that sector, with Carnegie Tech its opponent.

MICHIGAN LIKELY TO TWIST TIGER'S TAIL

Big 10 Team Looms as Victor Over Princeton in Eastern Battle.

By The Associated Press

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31—Another twist in the Tiger's tail loomed today as the Wolverines of Michigan invaded Palmer stadium for a clash with Ed Wittmer's Princeton eleven.

Michigan, co-champions with Northwestern of the Big Ten last season, has suffered one defeat this season, at the hands of Ohio State, but the mid-westerners looked much stronger than a Tiger beaten by Brown, Cornell and Navy.

Today's clash was the first between the two schools since 1881 when Princeton vanquished the Wolverines in the first intersectional contest on record.

Probable lineups:

Michigan	Pos.	Princeton
Petoskey	LE	Wister
Auer	LT	Gill
Hozer	LG	Garrett
Morrison	C	Hinman
LaJeunesse	RG	Yockey
Samuels	RT	Gahagan
Williamson	RE	Lea
Tessner	QB	Craig
Fay	LH	Brandt

PLAYER GOES BLIND

Julius Pappas, 20, star athlete at Lynn, Mass., Classical high school, recently went completely blind, the result of a malady which followed a series of gridiron scrimmages. Science has been baffled in his case and cannot trace the cause of the boy's misfortune. Ten days before he went blind, Pappas had his eyes tested with the result that they were declared "perfect."

MARQUETTE VICTOR OVER MISSISSIPPI

By The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 31—Fumbling on a rain-soaked gridiron, the University of Mississippi last night lost a floodlight intersectional football contest here, 13 to 6, to Marquette university.

Kirk Haynes received the Marquette kickoff and dashed 97 yards for a touchdown.

He took the ball on the first bounce, cut sharply to the right and ran 40 yards over the slippery turf as he sidestepped Hilltop men. Then, behind smooth interference, Haynes shot straight across the goal line. Both of Marquette's scores were indirect results of passes.

Marion Harmon, star tackle for Southern Methodist university, injured himself without going on the field. He twisted his shoulder pulling a jersey over his head.

BISHOP-BOBCAT FRAY TOPS GRID SCHEDULE OF OHIO COLLEGES

Winner Looms as B. A. A. Champ: Mt. Union, John Carroll Tie, 6-6.

By The Associated Press

The first "real football warrior" of the season was in prospect today as Ohio grid squads prepared to polish one another off and take on a little outside opposition in addition.

While the weather man was not overly optimistic, he promised only showers and said the temperature would remain about the same—a pleasant prospect for the warriors but scheduled to bring out warm coats for the fans.

Chief among interest in the all-state games was that between Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio University at Athens, a battle that will go a long way towards deciding the Buckeye Athletic Association champion for this year. Ohio U. will be fighting to make it three championships in a row.

Ohio State university, at Bloomington, Ind., to match brawn and speed with Indiana university before meeting Navy in a home-coming celebration at Columbus next Saturday, was given a slight edge over the Hoosiers after holding Northwestern to a 10-0 victory last Saturday.

The only other outside opposition saw Transylvania being entertained at Dayton. Other games on today's schedule include:

Kenyon at Capital, Muskingum at Cincinnati, Ashland at Akron, Wooster at Case, Wittenberg at Heidelberg, Kent at Baldwin-Wallace, Otterbein at Marietta, Western Reserve at Oberlin, Denison at Miami, Bowling Green at Defiance and Cedarville at Rio Grande.

John Carroll and Mt. Union locked horns last night and ended with a 6-6 tie, and Wilberforce overwhelmed the invading Alabama State Teachers, 32 to 0.

When Missouri's grid team played Texas at Austin, the heat was so great that Missouri players took shower baths between halves in uniform.

GRAINS SCORE BRISK GAINS

Prices Move Sharply Upward on Report of Advances in Liverpool.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 31—Brisk new record-breaking price upturns in grain took place early today, influenced by sharp advances in Liverpool wheat quotations and by stock market gains. Liverpool reported that wheat offerings were scanty, and that Russia was buying wheat back which had been contracted for future delivery aboard. Opening ¼@¾ cent higher, in a rush of buying, wheat continued to mount. Corn started ⅝@1⅛ up and later held near the initial limits.

Waves of profit taking impeded but failed to stop the advance of wheat prices until the season's top figures had been far outdone, with the market 2½ cents a bushel above yesterday's finish. Tending to accelerate the wheat advance was a dispatch announcing that the Australian government had adopted a bill providing a bounty of 9 cents a bushel on all wheat marketed this season. Bearish reports telling of favorable crop prospects both in Argentina and Australia were ignored.

Attention of wheat traders converged chiefly on Russian developments indicating that Russia was passing out of the picture as an exporter of wheat this season, and that North America would be called upon to furnish increased supplies to Europe. A leading authority advised that Russian government grain collections up to Oct. 29 had totaled only 30 per cent of the month's plan. Bulls also made capital of estimates from railroad sources that the Kansas wheat area had been reduced to 10,500,000 acres, against 12,800,000 sown a year ago, and that the crop condition in the western half of the state was bad. Corn and oats rose with wheat and on continuance of moves to withhold corn from market.

Provisions reflected grain strength, despite lower hog values.

"THE CISCO KID," TO PLAY PALACE, HAS STRONG CAST

BY MALLIE HOUCK

Conchita Montenegro, one of the new vixens from Mexico, is in support of Warner Baxter and Edmund Lowe in "The Cisco Kid," playing at the Palace Sunday through Tuesday.

WARNER BAXTER

Baxter, the Columbus, O., man who made good in Hollywood and Lowe, the Sergeant Quirt of the Lowe-McLaglen team, have the leading roles.

"The Cisco Kid" was adapted from O. Henry's famous "The Bad Man" and was filmed in the picturesque Santa Cruz desert and the Catalina mountains of Arizona.

O. Henry's bandit is a chivalrous cut throat, loving all women and trusting none, gay caballero of the border who defied the law for the fun of it.

Conchita wears one gown in this picture that measures 30 yards around the hem line. It was fashioned of flame colored chiffon velvet, white chiffon and white georgette, hand-embroidered in spangles in gold, red, blue, purple and silver.

OHIO OFFERS DOUBLE BILL

The Ohio is offering a double bill all week, beginning Sunday. The "double" part of the bill is Prince Hallow Pengelli, a crystal gazer.

On the screen for four days beginning Sunday will be Winnie Lightner and Charles Butterworth in "Side Show." The trailer looked as if Winnie might have a few serious moments in this picture. Donald Cook, former Hartman Stock Co. man, and Evelyn Knapp from Broadway have important roles.

Pengelli will "crystal gaze" for a "woman only" at a matinee Wednesday. Monday at 12 noon he will leave the theater to drive through the streets of Marion blindfolded.

Edward Morgan who has a small role in "Side Show," is a brother of Marian Marsh, the screen discovery of Barrymore's "Svengali" and lately of "Five Star Final."

Two freaks of the sideshow scenes weigh more than half a ton. They are Anna Magruder and Henry Rohwer the fat lady and fat boy who weigh 580 and 553 pounds respectively.

EDMUND LOWE IN "THE SPIDER" AT THE PALACE TODAY

Magic, seances, murder and mystery all are crammed into a show packed with thrills in "The Spider" which opened a two-day run at the Palace last night. Edmund Lowe, ever his best as a polished gentleman, is a great magician. A man is shot in the theater during his performance. His assistant is involved. By his wizardry and magic, he solves the mystery, unites a long-lost brother with his sister, and as you have probably guessed, marries the sister. A comedy, Mickey Mouse cartoon, a song feature and the news reel complete the Palace's entertaining bill.

The State theater is showing a second run of Constance Bennett's "The Easiest Way" on Sunday. The picture is rated among the $30,000-a-week star's best, with Adolphe Menjou, Robert Montgomery, Anita Page, Marjorie Rambeau, J. Farrell Macdonald (who played the part of Rockne in "The Spirit of Notre Dame"), Clara Blandick and Clark Gable, in support. This was one of Gable's first pictures, before he was "discovered."

Things looked exciting in the trailer of "A Dangerous Affair," playing at the Marion Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Sally Blane have the featured roles. The picture was taken from a story by Howard J. Green and a reporter with a flare for putting a quiet little city on the map, precipitates the whole affair.

Holt and Graves appear together for the first time since they worked in "Dirigible." They made "Submarine," "Flight" and "Hell's Island" together.

The press sheets are full of talk of haunted houses and ghosts. A regular Halloween picture.

City Subject of Article in Telephone Co. Magazine

Marion, the subject of articles in several railroad and industrial publications in the past, is again in the limelight, this time in The Mouth-Piece, the official publication for employes of the Associated Telephone Utilities System.

The leading article in the 40 page publication, it tells of the early history of both the city and the telephone company. It was written by Ralph S. Bennett, of 332 Forest street, an employe of the company, and presents in an interesting fashion some of the highlights of the city's early history not generally known.

Accompanying the article are a number of pictures, one group showing views of the city and of the telephone company's location and equipment 25 years ago. Others show views of the lobby and toll room in the present telephone building on south Main street. Group pictures of the employes and of the exchanges at Waldo, Green Camp and Morral are also included in the article.

John and Ebenezer Ballentine, the article says, are believed to have been the first settlers in what is now the city of Marion, having arrived here in the fall of 1820, two years before the village was laid out by Eber Baker. They located in a double cabin on the east side of what is now known as Main street.

The history of the telephone company is also reviewed in an interesting way from the time of the establishing of the first exchange in 1882 to the present time. The first exchange was established, according to the article, by H. G. Reiser who was the owner and manager. It was operated by Mr. Reiser and his three sisters, Emma, Hattie and Bertha and boasted 45 telephones. It was taken over by the Central Union Telephone Co. in 1897. A. J. Berry, present manager, became associated with the company in 1891 and in 1901 was made manager.

On May 31, 1900, French Crow, O. Wollenweber, D. R. Crissinger, J. W. Scott and C. H. Norris, formed a company known as The Marion County Telephone Co., which purchased the property of the Central Union Telephone Co. Taken over by the United Telephone Co., in 1928 the company became known as the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. and last February the property was acquired by the Associated Telephone Utilities Co.

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — Hundreds of steel workers unemployed for weeks, many months, return to mills as orders for steel products increase.

ROANOKE, Va. — Norfolk & Western railway plans construction of 10 new 22,000 gallon engine tenders, and extensive repairs to 500 steel coal cars.

NEW ARRIVALS ON PRODUCE MARKETS

Shipped in Fruits and Vegetables Arriving Here in Good Quantities.

The market activity of the week was marked by the appearance of numerous articles, some of which have been expected for some time by dealers and consumers.

Florida oranges made their first appearance of the season, with dealers reporting a good supply being shipped in. Prices ranged from 39 cents to 49 cents a dozen, which was considered a fair price for the quality and type.

Winter Nellis pears also came on the market, selling at 13 cents a pound at many markets. The quality was good. Dealers expect the sales to be rather light pending the removal of home-grown pears from the market. This is gradually being done now, the report.

Hothouse tomatoes were being shipped in as the week progressed, replacing the homegrown variety which had been decreasing in quality steadily, many dealers reported. The new variety was selling around 15 cents a pound. Brussel sprouts arrived on the market about midweek, selling at 9 cents a quart.

Asparagus made its first appearance late in the week, with dealers asking 39 cents a pound. Sales were reported good, with a fairly heavy supply coming in.

The sale of rutabaga turnips, another new arrival, was going well at four cents a pound at many markets. The removal of kraut cabbage from the market was clearly indicated late in the week. Celery hearts reappeared at eight to 10 cents a bunch.

Baking squash in the smaller sizes were being sold at three pounds for 10 cents by many dealers.

Prices of articles new on the market last week, including Indiana Jersey sweet potatoes, oyster plant and others, remained about the same during the last week. Endive showed perhaps the most fluctuation, ranging from 10 to 15 cents a pound.

IN MEMORIAM

WILLIAM H. OSWALD

Who one year ago lost his life when his automobile overturned at the C. & O. crossing north of Radnor, pinning him beneath.

William has been sadly missed by the entire community where he was extremely popular.

He was a member of the Reformed church of Prospect, of Bethlehem Grange, and Marion County Pomona Grange, of the Radnor High School orchestra, Boys' Glee Club, and of the High School Football Team.

He was in his Senior year and one of the highest marks of respect was shown him at the annual commencement exercises when beautiful memorial services were held for him.

In the cemetery, softly sleeping,
Lies the one we love so dearly,
In his silent, lonely grave
Peaceful be your sleep dear William,
It is sweet to breathe your name.
In life, we loved you dearly
In death, we do the same.
Just a year ago, you left us,
Now we miss you, brother dear.
In remembrance of your sweet face,
As we drop a silent tear,
You shall never be forgotten
Never from our memory fade,
Loving hearts will always linger
Around the grave, where you were laid.

Mother and Father.

Philippine Problem Largely One of Presidential Buck Passing, Will Says

WELL all I know is just what I read in the paper, or what I hear between times that I am not Gabbing myself, (which aint often). Couple of Weeks ago Pat Hurley, Secretary of War in these Peace times in Mr. Hoover's Cabinet, well, Pat had been away over in the Philippines Rumors had reached the President that the "Little Brown Brothers" was just about ready to have our End and Board and take up citizenship elsewhere. They had heard of the advantages of Independence, but evidently very little of its drawbacks So Mr. Hoover looked over his eight or nine hired men in the Cabinet, and he choose Pat He knew that Part was a man that no matter what argument the "little Brunette Brothers" put up why Pat would have an answer to em So he says to Pat'

"Pat along with 876 other difficulties I am having, the Philippines are perspiring to Independence. Will you go over there and see if its Bolshevikki propaganda, or just Democratic influence You know its hard to tell nowadays which causes me the most devilment, the Russians or the Democrats Now go on over there You got nothing to do We havent got a war booked at this time. I dont know whats the matter with Stimpson, he is backward, but I got him working on this Jap China one, and if everything turns out all right why we ought to have a real job for a Secretary of war before long. But you havent much on your mind. Your oil is such a good price, and Oklahoma under Bill Murray is smiling along fine, so you havent got a thing to worry about.

Pat Gets "Wised" Up

"Now listen, here is some instructions If they really want their Independence, why about the best way I know to get even with em would would be to give it to em. But don't do it too quick, for that would make em think maby we dident want em, and they are a very sensitive people You know every people you deal with are always sensitive, so you musent hurt their feelings. In Diplomacy, the way they work it they always are careful to not hurt anybodys feelings but their own people, but you go over there and kinder nose around, and see whats eating on our Insular Possession. Bring me back a report, for one more report added to the 623 that arrive back to me daily from my Commissions, wont be much more, but you can give me yours verbaly Dont come dragging in here with it like Wickersnam in a Truck. I like you Pat, so if you cant give em their freedom, why at least refuse in such way that you arrive back here with the report Kinder look China and Japan over while you are there, and see if you can find out who's baiting that trap every morning.

"One of our Senators from Missouri has been in the Philippines this summer and set em free, so you go explain to em just what a Senator is and get em all laughing again. Explain to em that when a Senator sets you free, that its a kind of a Near Beer Freedom, and they dont want to expect too much results from it. Explain that we have 96 of these that go out every summer, freeing somebody, and we have yet to find one of their cures that was permanent. Now don't stop in Utah on your way out and let Reed Smoot get ahold of you You must remember that Utah raises sugar beets, and The Philippines raises sugar cane, and both of em make sugar. Well you just wave a Philippine sugar cane at Smoot and you got what might be known in the classics as a hostile Senator on your hands. He'll trade you the whole Islands for a package of Cubebs So he is not just exactly what you would call a disinterested bystander He is mighty able man so dont let him get you in arguing distance."

Well Pat went and he saw, and I met him when he come back, he was just oozing Philippine Islands. He flew from one end of em to He flew from one end of em to another, he talked with everybody that could talk, and those that couldent why he talked to them He told em that the Great White Father had sent him over to see if they was as bad off as we were They all nodded and said, "Uh, Uh, Yes." He says, "Well I doubt it." He says, "We want to give you your Independence"

It's a Great Game

McKinley said, "We lost to Spain and had to take you," Roosevelt said, "Aguinaldo, we are here! and I think you should have freedom, but not under my Administration." Taft said, "Ha! Ha! lets all have a good laugh, and we will set you free, soon as the Democrats get in.' Wilson said, "We promised em their Independence, and I will see that the next President gives it to em." Harding said, 'It wont be long now" Coolidge said, "Let Hoover do it." Hoover says, "If the other Presidents have stalled for 30 years, (as a good Republican of six long years standing) I don't see why I should not continue likewise"

So its one of those things that each fellow is going to hand down to the other, and the question will eventually be brought to Young Theodore Roosevelt the 8th. Who will pass it on to President Maurice Cohen.

It's like Prohibition as a problem it will always be with us. I asked Pat, "Pat are they really ready for Independence?" He says, "No." I says how can you tell when a Nation is ready for Independence? He says, "I don't know. I never saw a Nation that was." I says wouldn't Japan Pounce on em and take em over the very day we got out? He says, "No! Not till maby the following morning" I asked, is there much Russian Propaganda in the far east. He says, "Much more than there is food"

"Will the five year Plan succeed?" "If it does the Republicans will adopt it."

"Who will the Republicans run?" "When, in 36?"

"Who will the Democrats run in 32?" "I dont think they will enter a man, Will."

I says, "Do you know any other things?' He says, "Yes, but I am not going to tell em till I get back to the Boss"

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR CITY AUDITOR

The following is taken from the report of George T. Dustman, state examiner in his report to the Department of Auditor of State under the date of Oct. 12, 1930:

"The records kept in the office of the City Auditor have been neatly and accurately kept, the appropriations of council have been enforced, and from the few errors noted in examining vouchers, it is apparent that vouchers are well audited before being paid."

ATTENTION!

Below are the candidates who have been nominated by the Republicans of the City of Marion, and who are recommended by the Republican organization. We believe they are, without exception, worthy of every voter's favorable consideration:

WM. C. PHILLIANS, candidate for Mayor, is a business man of wide experience, and has served as President of Council and acting Mayor.

JAMES E. MESSENGER, candidate for President of Council, is a former west side business man, and former County Treasurer.

J. L. LANDES, candidate for City Auditor, has been a tried and proven public servant in this office.

RUSSELL C. SNARE, is present City Treasurer, and a valued employe of one of our local banks.

CARTER M. PATTON, is a prominent local attorney, present city solicitor and runs without opposition.

WILLIAM G. SLACK is present councilman at large, and Frank M. Little and Clarence L. Price are running for first term.

GRANT HALDERMAN and L. E. Starr are present city councilmen, and J. A. Wilkins, W. M. Ireland, H. L. Rogers and Frank Stanley, are running for first term. These men are all of high standing in the community, and are well qualified to fill the position which they seek.

HARRY L. ALBRECHT and W. H. Marks, candidates for School Board, have a deep interest in our educational institutions and should be elected.

JUDGE WILLIAM R. MARTIN, candidate for re-election for Municipal Judge, whose name will appear on a separate ballot has made a fine record in this office. He is eminently deserving of re-election.

We regard the above list of candidates as an admirable combination of experience and new blood, and trust the voters will give them all their careful consideration on election day.

Hallowe'en of Old Days Gone Forever

BY HALLIE HOUCK

OH boy, oh joy, where do we go from here!

The theme song of the old-time Hallowe'eners, but gone are the "good old days" of the brass railing and the foaming steins—but this is a Hallowe'en story

Gone are the Hallowe'ens that struck terror to the hearts of whole villages. And this passing is rather sad, although admittiedly, life is made safer for gates and porches since the police have decreed that Hallowe'ens must be sane, dignified affairs

Hallowe'ens of 20 and 30 years ago were nerve-wracking affairs, dangerous, but oh what jolly times! From dark until early on the morning of Nov. 1 the "bad boys" and "heathens" of the villages and cities unburdened grudges of a year's standing by doing their worst.

Old Zip Gone

Now, a few soup beans are thrown on front porches, automobile windows and windshields are soaped, and that's all The more daring kids get up a lot of nerve and unhook a porch swing or two, but there's no zip to petty naughtiness like that.

Life in the old days was gruesome living on Hallowe'en night Tick-tacks were considered the mildest form of amusement, but the daring went so far as to include blocking public highways with fence rails, hanging buggies on the uptown telephone poles, taking gates down and tearing up jack in general

If the boys of today ever dared to think of some of the things their fathers and grandfathers reminisce about so uproariously, they'd be turned over to the police.

Good Old Days

Some of the stories that have come down to the young people of Hallowe'ens of the "go'd old days" are hair-raising. One Marion man tells the story of a gang—of course he took no part in it—that moved a ramshackle building, in the southern part of Ohio, off its pilings and set it across a state highway!

Common indeed are the Hallowe'en stories of hanging the farmer's buggy to the highest pole in the center of town—Marion men tell the stories. One Marion man participated in the removing of a gate from its hinges and leaving it on top of a porch roof where it wasn't discovered until months later and had rusted into a sad affair of a once-useful gate

Rail fences were "pets" of the long-ago Hallowe'eners. It was a hard job to take 'em down and set 'em up across a road, but it was worth the work to hear the language of the man on the road when he came to the barricade.

Another Marion man and one of his gang, all farm boys then, blew up a creek back of an old couple's house, using long sticks of dynamite. But the sad part was that the creek rained water, sticks, stones and dead fish on the boys, and the old folks, both hard of hearing, didn't know anything had happened Just one of the big disappointments of life to the boys.

Ways To Find Lover

Maybe the women of Marion remember some of the never-fail methods by which they found their true love on the Eve of All Saints.

There was the trick of peeling an apple, swinging the paring three times over the head and letting it drop over the left shoulder The initial curled by the paring was surely the initial of the best boy friend.

Then there was the trick of placing an apple seed on each eye-lid, naming the seeds for the two favorites of the moment. The seed which fell first was that of the unfaithful suitor and sweet dreams were those that followed of the boy for whom the less impatient apple seed was named.

Demure maidens of the past used to toss two hazelnuts into the fire, naming each for a lover The one bursting first was the unfaithful lover but the hazelnut that burned steadily—ah, there was the man to lie awake nights thinking about.

Clearings for Week.

Bank clearings for the week were the lowest in the past several months, a check of figures at the clearing house showed today. Clearings for the week totaled $170,000 04 or $85,118 74 less than last week when the total was given as $256,881 34 Bankers attach no particular importance to the fluctuations of the clearings, declaring they do not represent the total of the business transactions in the city.

For reducing surplus flesh a New York man has invented a machine which revolves a series of rollers around a person's body

One of the best of the old and approved methods was for a girl to place a silver of wood in a glass of water set by her bedside She was sure to dream of falling off a bridge into the water The man who rescued her was the man she was sure to go Lohengrinning with

But the catch would seem to be —what if you dreamed a prosaic dream of washing dishes and cleaning a house. Nothing romantic in that even if the man were a Clark Gable and a Clive Brook rolled into one.

Judge William R. Martin

for

JUDGE OF THE MUNICIPAL COURT

JUDICIAL TICKET
SECOND TERM

Under date of November 1st, 1926, (front page) the following editorial was written and presented to the voters of the City and Township of Marion, by the Marion Star:—

"THE NEW MUNICIPAL COURT"

"Whoever is elected as the first Municipal Judge in Marion will probably be the subject of more criticism than any man ever elected to office in this City. If you don't vote for one of the candidates tomorrow, then you should never raise your voice in criticism. But you should vote on that question by all means, because it is the most immediately important decision to be made at the polls this year.

"We struggled hard and earnestly for years to get a Municipal Court. It takes over all the work of the several Justices of the Peace, and all the trial duties of the Mayor Moreover, it takes out of the hands of the Common Pleas Court all civil cases up to $1,000 00. It is going to be a real job, and of the utmost importance to the preservation of a law-abiding community.

"Weigh the candidates carefully and be guided by the suitability and adaptability of the man rather than a feeling of friendship, for if he is not qualified for this trying job, you will be doing him the greatest possible disfavor by helping to elect him.

"The man who undertakes the inauguration of the Municipal Court in Marion must be fortified against the pressure of friendly influence, he must have a real basic knowledge of the law, and render sincere, competent judgment. Certainly it is a position of major importance that calls for mature wisdom above all.

"Let us not make a mistake in our first Municipal Judgeship, and the surest way in the world to avoid that is for every qualified voter to go to the polls tomorrow."

The following day William R. Martin was selected by the citizens of this community to be your first Municipal Judge.

We are submitting to you his record in the handling of 8,957 cases, of which 4,165 were criminal cases; 4,636 were civil cases involving sums under $300.00, and 156 civil cases involving sums of money from $300.00 to $1,000.00. The records of the Clerk of the Court of Marion County, Ohio, show that of this total of 8,957 cases, only 25 were carried to the higher courts on Petitions in Error, or on Appeal and of the 25 cases carried to the higher Courts, Judge Martin was reversed in only one case.

We are submitting to you as citizens of this community the question as to whether or not Judge Martin has fulfilled the necessary requirements as Judge of Marion Municipal Court.

If you desire a Judge who has demonstrated in the handling of the above number of cases, his ability to correctly interpret the law and the evidence, and who has been fair and impartial to all persons coming before him, then vote to re-elect Judge William R. Martin, as Judge of our Municipal Court.

Never take a good judge off of the bench.

William R. Martin for Municipal Judge Committee

DON A. HOWARD, President MRS. GEORGE EYRE, Secretary.

The city fathers ruled there is no law against eating pecans. If the property owners want to harvest the nuts, let them get up earlier.

Christians, Evangelism

A SERMONETTE

REV. G. G. CANFIELD
Pastor First Church of the Brethren

THE follower of the Lord Jesus has been called a Christian, not so much because of the type of religion he has chosen but because of the revelation to his soul from the Giver of life, as to the purpose of his creation. Evangelism is the result of that revelation, namely to witness for Him who must be lifted up and who when He is lifted up "will draw all men unto himself."

Evangelism is not argument or debate as to who should be given glory through the fervency of our allegiance. For Christ, the one with whom we have allied ourselves, needs but an open heart and mind to whom He may be able to have contact, and when the contact is made the light will come as surely as the electric current is turned into a perfectly normal light bulb, one that had been made for the purpose of giving light, the which could not give light of itself, until the current be connected.

The Bible is the instruction book, which if followed, there can be no mistake as to the Christian's proper connection with the Almighty, and we begin at once to answer the purpose of our creation.

We are not our own, we have been purchased, and all authority has been given unto Him who bought us with the price of His own blood, and He puts us into the darkened places, made so by sin, and stimulates, and challenges us to shine for Him. He, our Captain, knows all the needy, who are dying for the light of His Love; and the light bearer or channel through which that love light can flow.

There is no discount upon the Christian who will burn out, by faithful, loyal service, for others; and there is no limit to the usefulness of such a one, for he in lighting his light shine while he has the earthly existence and their works do follow them.

No one liveth to himself or dieth to himself; there is a mighty influence going out from every life. Either he will, by being a light, light another, by his Christian characteristics of love, joy, peace, kindness, charity and goodness; to the full satisfaction of all; or else he will by his fleshy, ungodly life, drag others to the same disagreeable end that he himself is sure to receive.

Every Christian is required to carry the good news of salvation to a lost and dying people; the only vessel able to contain this message is the soul made worthy by the cleansing blood of the Son of God applied to the willing open hearted one. Others then will "See our good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven."

FOOTBALL PLANS to abolish the "flying wedge," which caused the death of Richard Sheridan, West Point player.

If football must exist, for the glory of schools and colleges and the encouragement of education, everything possible should be done to make death on the football field as unlikely as possible.

That "flying wedge," much older than modern football, had its uses when Alexander the Great employed it to send his soldiers through the Persian ranks, that outnumbered him ten to one; it is hardly suited to a game for boys.

GRANGE TO PRESENT PLAY AT SCHOOLS

"A Henpecked Hero" To Be Given at Waldo and Prospect.

The young people of Bethlehem grange will present a benefit play, "A Henpecked Hero," Tuesday, Nov. 10 at the Prospect school auditorium and Thursday, Nov. 12 at the Waldo school auditorium. The play is under the direction of Miss Marie Bender, lecturer.

"A Henpecked Hero," a three-act farce, revolves around the misfortunes of a meek man with a romantic-minded bride and a strong-minded mother-in-law. His studious nature and unathletic physique make him a victim of domestic tyranny, until the bride's longing for a cave-man type of husband causes him to go to a real cave and become a real cave-man with nearly fatal results.

LOS ANGELES POLICE BATTLE MOB OF 500

125 Tear Bombs Hurled at Alleged Reds; Business Area in Turmoil.

By United Press

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 31—Police tossed 125 tear bombs and threw the business district into turmoil while battling a crowd of men and women who sought to hold a mass meeting in the philharmonic auditorium last night. Police said the meeting had been arranged by Communists.

Thousands of pedestrians and motorists abandoned their automobiles. Hotel guests, patrons of picture shows, restaurants and other places of business fled to the streets. Men, women and children ran in all directions to escape the gas.

The crowd rushed the building when police repulsed several women who tried to force their way in. In the melee three policemen were slugged with blackjacks. Clubs and fists were used.

A riot call brought all available policemen. The mob was dispersed only to form again a block away. Two officers were injured so seriously they were taken to a hospital.

Five men and four women asserted ringleaders of the mob, were arrested.

GRAND JURY URGES DRY LAW REPEAL

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31—Repeal of the prohibition amendment "in the interest of temperance" is advocated by a superior court grand jury here.

The jurors made a formal presentment to Judge John D. Humphries in Fulton county (Atlanta) superior court yesterday declaring "sworn testimony before us was to the effect that it was impossible to stop the flow into Atlanta and sale illicitly of liquors."

"It was found," the presentment read, "that many people normally law-abiding have utter disregard for, and in fact, in some cases take a delight in breaking the prohibition laws."

The jurors reported that at least 90 per cent of the cases brought before them "had their inception in the illicit sale of spiritous liquors."

Donald Parr of 404 Blaine avenue, whose eye was removed last Saturday following an accident on west Center street, is eight years old today. John Street of east Fairground street who is 11 today, was recovered sufficiently from a hernia operation to have been dismissed this morning but he wished so much to stay for the party at noon, that he wasn't taken home until after luncheon.

Gustave Kuhnan of 276 Troy avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., is 32 today. Kuhnen, whose parents are in Germany, was injured in a train accident more than a month ago. Riding a freight train, his right foot was caught in a coupling and crushed when the brakes were applied. Kuhnen and the two boys are all in room No. 5, the ward on first floor.

Charles Furniss of west of Marion, who was taken to City hospital Tuesday for amputation of his left leg following an accident in which his leg was caught in the pulley of a bean huller, celebrated his fifty-third birthday today. His room is No. 80 on the third floor.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Parr, parents of "Donny," and a few close relatives had a quiet little party for him this afternoon. He isn't able to sit up in bed, but there was a party just the same. Gifts were taken to "Donny" and his two "birthday brothers."

Last Civil War General Passes 96th Milestone

By The Associated Press

TEWKSBURY, Mass., Oct. 31—Phantom troops marched in review on Prospect hill today as Adelbert Ames, last surviving general of the Civil war, observed his ninety-sixth birthday.

The oldest living graduate of West Point, General Ames looked back today upon a life crammed full of action and, from a memory rich in anecdote, told of famous men and famous battles that shaped his country's destiny.

He recalled days at West Point with Robert E. Lee among his teachers; the first battle of Bull Run, where he stopped a southern bullet and won the congressional medal of honor for his valor; stormy days of reconstruction as Governor of Mississippi and as its representative in the United States senate with such giants as Colfax and Cameron and Blaine; and finally of his return to the battlefield as a brigadier general of volunteers at Santiago in the Spanish-American war.

Now he's looking forward to winter days in Florida, where he goes each autumn, and where, until two years ago he played golf with an elderly gentleman who also had something of a career, John D. Rockefeller.

Slight of frame and mild of manner, with only a flashing eye and crispness of speech to mark him as the soldier, General Ames at 96 is still enjoying life, with his books, his papers, his motor trips and frequent motion picture shows.

PREPARE FOR TRIAL IN TRUNK MURDERS

Two Charges To Be Faced by Mrs. Judd in Arizona.

By The Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 31—Two claims for the life of 26-year-old Winnie Ruth Judd, confessed slayer of her two former friends, will be made by the state of Arizona.

County Attorney Lloyd Andrews said today that an additional murder charge would be brought against Mrs. Judd in connection with the death of Miss Hedvig Samuelson. She was extradited on the charge of killing Mrs. Agnes Ann Leroi. She will be tried on each charge separately, with the death penalty demanded by the state, Andrews said

Decision to try the woman on separate charges was made, Andrews stated, to allow for the possibility of a jury returning a verdict of acquittal on one of the charges.

Mrs. Judd, pale and trembling, was brought to the Maricopa county jail here yesterday from Los Angeles, where she was arrested after the bodies of her two victims, whom she asserted she shot in self defense, were found in trunks at a railroad depot.

15,000 PARADE IN DRY LAW PROTEST

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 31—Four separate street parades, bristling with banners and placards crying "we want beer" and "open the breweries and put one million unemployed to work," marched down Broad street last night in an anti-prohibition demonstration.

With 35 bands supplying the music, the paraders saw 15,000 union labor men, marched to Military park, where Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor bitterly assailed the eighteenth amendment.

Legalization of beer at this particular time, Woll said, would give employment to from 500,000 to 1,000,000 men, stimulate commerce and provide the government with revenue enough to make projected sales tax unnecessary.

MEN JUBILANT AS STAY IS GRANTED

Ralls Get Last-Minute Reprieve as White Reads "Confession."

Elijah Ralls, also of Crestline, his deceased uncle, had fired the shot which killed Sheriff Davenport.

Rev. Mr. Wall, who heard the confession, acted quickly. The statement was signed and read to the chief executive.

At 7:20 p. m. word came of the governor's decision. The men were returned to their cells.

Crowd Assembled

At the gates of the penitentiary a crowd of newspapermen, official witnesses, and some morbidly curious persons was told of the sudden reprieve.

The curious departed to their homes. To press representatives Warden P. E. Thomas exhibited the statement of Blanton Ralls. It said:

"This is the truth of what happened—Uncle Walter and I was in bed; Uncle Elijah came up and said that the officers were coming; Uncle Walter jumped out of bed; he picked up a rifle; someone put a flashlight on him; Uncle Walter did not aim or shoot but started to run through a door; Uncle Elijah, who was somewhere in the room, did the shooting. I wanted to tell this at the trial but was not given a chance."

The statement substantially conformed with details of the crime, as outlined by attorneys for the doomed men.

In an alleged confession introduced during his trial at Bucyrus, Walter Ralls said that he fired the shot that fatally wounded Sheriff Davenport. The confession further said that the three had gone to bed after "agreeing to get the law" if the sheriff arrived to arrest Walter.

Sheriff Davenport, accompanied by Crestline police, went to the Ralls home on the night of Jan. 23 to arrest Walter Ralls on a charge of chicken stealing. The house was dark. He entered the front door, and, with the aid of a flashlight, groped his way up a flight of stairs.

Reaching the landing, he entered a room. A gun was fired. Davenport fell back, mortally wounded. He had been struck by buckshot fired from a 12-guage shotgun.

Before his death he told his companions that Walter Ralls had "finished" him.

The Ralls expressed belief that they had been saved by the "Almighty."

Not Communicative

Blanton Ralls, a diminutive youth, wore a green eye shady which partially shielded his shaved head. He was shy and loath to speak.

Walter Ralls' face beamed. He spoke readily.

"We were sitting in the room talking to the ministers preparing ourselves for the trip to eternity. I had a feeling something was going to happen, and it certainly did," he said.

Blanton later said he felt "pretty good." He would not speak concerning his confession.

"You don't get a chance to tell what you know at a trial," he complained. "That was the closest shave I ever had," Walter Ralls said as guards told him of the reprieve. The two Negroes had held hope against their decreed fate to the last minute. The parts of their last meal which they had been unable to eat had been carried back to their cells. Walter disclosed that he had turned to religion during what he believed were his last hours. He said he had closed his eyes in an endeavor to see "into the beyond."

"I closed my eyes and looked" he said, "but I didn't see anything."

Had Premonition, Walter Says

Walter, who has spent most of his time in death row reading the Bible, declared today, "I didn't feel like I was going to die last night."

"I didn't commit the murder and I believe that God will take care of me," he said. "God's will is just. If it is my time to die, I will die; if not, I won't."

A word confession was obtained last Monday from Blanton Ralls, it was said, by Rev. N. H. Hardrick, pastor of the African Methodist Episcopal church at Delaware. K. E. Wall, chaplain at the penitentiary was notified, but when he attempted to get a written statement in death row, Blanton refused.

Rev. Mr. Wall said he tried several times during the week to get the confession, but to no avail.

Louis H. Kreider, defense counsel from Bucyrus, visited the two condemned men about 6 p. m. yesterday and obtained another word confession from Blanton. He called Chaplain Wall and the confession was put in writing.

Both men admitted that they did not have "much of an appetite" for what was to have been their last meal. They ate only about half of it. Their hunger returned with the reprieve, however, and they took what remained of the "last meal" and devoured it.

When the Negroes were returned to "white city," a few low and guarded cheers were raised. Other doomed men joked about the "funny haircuts."

The reprieve granted by Governor White effective until Friday, Nov. 13, will allow attorneys for the men to either file a motion for a new trial in the Crawford county common pleas court or seek a rehearing in the state supreme court.

Louis H. Kreiter of Galion attorney for Walter Ralls, and Elmer Lutz and Arden Wieman of Bucyrus, attorneys for Blanton Ralls, worked feverishly in an attempt to delay the execution.

For more than two hours yesterday they presented arguments before the state board of parales and E. P. Dunkle, executive secretary to Governor White.

Earlier in the day the board of parole had refused to recommend commutation of the sentences to life imprisonment.

ASK FOR HOSPITAL IN NORTHERN OHIO

Delegations Tell Board Facilities in This Region Are Inadequate.

Prospects of the proposed $750,000 veterans bureau hospital for Ohio being located in the northern section of the state were believed heightened today following yesterday's impressive hearing before the federal board of hospitalization, according to a United Press dispatch from Washington.

The cause of the northern half of the state was aided when Representative Wilbur T. White of Toledo, former Senator Atlee Pomerene of Cleveland and City Manager Daniel E. Morgan told the board that hospital facilities in this area are woefully inadequate.

A Marion delegation was among the 25 groups to present 10-minute speeches before the board pointing out the advantages of choosing a site for the hospital in their respective cities. The Marion delegation will return Sunday night.

No decision will be reached until the hospitalization board, headed by General Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, sends inspectors to Ohio to look over various cities.

EUROPEAN FINANCIAL CONFERENCE LIKELY

Immediate Action Appears Evident on Debts and Reparations Problems.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 31—A prospect of immediate activity on the question of European finances, especially debts and reparations payments, as soon as Premier Pierre Laval arrives Monday was evident today.

Petit Parisen printed a dispatch from the liner Ile de France, on which the premier is returning, saying an international conference on debts and reparations may be held in December.

BERLIN, Oct. 31—Agitation for an international conference at which President Hoover would be asked to participate, is expected to form the chief basis of Germany's foreign policy during the next few weeks while means of dealing with reparations and other financial problems are being sought.

The suggestion, advanced in government circles, was brought out following a conference between Chancellor Bruening and Dr. Leopold Von Hoesch, German ambassador to France, who arrived today to receive his government's instructions before he confers with Premier Laval next week.

NAVY LEAGUE SILENT ON HOOVER PROPOSAL

President Defers Action in Controversy with Bigger Navy Advocates.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—The next move in the bitter controversy between President Hoover and the navy league, long-time advocate of increased armaments, is up to the league.

President Hoover is ready, to name a jury to decide whether he has shown "abysmal ignorance" of naval matters," as charged by the league, or whether William Howard Gardiner, its president over whose name the attack was issued, is guilty of uttering a "tissue of falsehoods," as charged by the White House.

The President is awaiting, however, "to secure a list of the members of the navy league," before selecting the jury.

"As soon as that list is obtainable," he said, "I shall select representation for the membership of a committee which will be able to establish the untruths promulgated by the president of that body."

For their part, neither the league nor Gardiner has indicated assent to the President's proposal that they participate in an airing of the controversy by a presidential appointed committee.

Silence has been the only answer to the President's bitter denunciation of Gardiner, of whom he said he would expect "a public correction of his misstatements, and an apology" upon a completion of the inquiry.

URGE SUPPORT OF ONE-MILL CITY LEVY

Say Special Issue Only Solution to Marion's Welfare Problem This Winter.

Walker today said:

"I believe that this depression probably has turned the bottom of the trough, but that the reaction will be too slow to be of aid to unemployment this winter. It will be spring or summer before employment returns to any noticeable extent, and this will be at a lower wage scale than we previously had.

"At present, unemployment is at its worst in Marion. Relief demands on agencies are already heavier than they were during most months last winter, and will be much greater with the coming of cold weather.

Burden Heavier

"Every source we have for basing estimate of winter relief requirements indicate from 50 to 100 per cent heavier burden on the city relief department this year than last. It would seem hopeless to expect to get money required to meet this burden from any other source than the one-mill tax levy. It is the only way the burden can be fairly spread over the city with any definite prospect of raising even approximately an adequate amount.

"The city is already bonded to the limit, and can not issue more bonds for poor relief. Issuance of bonds for poor relief is not desirable as, in my opinion, this relief should be cared for on a 'pay as you go' basis.

Controlled by City

"It should be explicitly understood that funds raised from this levy will be controlled and expended by the city authorities. The Family Welfare society, the unemployment committee and other organizations of similar character are merely striving to assist in this work in such a way as to minimize the burden on the city and accomplish the best results for all."

In a statement this morning, Mayor Jones pointed out that whether the city meets the welfare needs here during winter months will depend on voters' action on the levy Tuesday.

"Due to an emergency situation, it is necessary that funds be provided for persons in distress, and the only adequate means of raising funds for this purpose is through the one-mill levy," he said. "There need be no question in the minds of any voters but that the entire proceeds of the levy will be spent for poor relief purposes," he added.

In speeches and printed matter on the levy, the rapid growth of the city's welfare needs has been pointed out. In July, 1930, the city spent $165 for its needy. Last July, the same department spent $2,206.50 in poor relief. During the first six months of 1931, it was necessary for the city relief department and the Family Welfare society to spend $37,201.02 to care for the poor. During this period, the peak month was March when $7,461.44 was spent.

COURT NEWS

Considers Case

Common Pleas Judge George B. Scofield today had under advisement the case of John Fellmeth against the Marion Implement Co., following the presentation of testimony in the case yesterday.

Fellmeth maintains that used farm machinery sold to him by the company under a guarantee was not satisfactory and that the company did not live up to its agreement to replace certain parts of a binder included in the transaction. He asked $115.50 damages from the company. The company answered this by stating that Fellmeth gave a note in part payment for the machinery, and later returned the binder to the company and was given credit on the note for $60.

Homer E. Johnson is counsel for Fellmeth, and the law firm of Clark & Arter represents the Marion Implement Co.

Waste Poles Removed

Judgment for $1,000 damages and an order from the court for the C., D. & M. Electric Co. to remove poles and a platform from her property are asked by Barbara Bingham in an action filed in common pleas court this morning. She asserts that the company erected a platform on poles projecting 10 feet over her property, and that from this platform cables were hung directly over her house. The cables emit a crackling noise at all times and crash loudly during electrical storms. Because of the location of the poles and guy wires, she has been unable to erect a driveway, she says. The poles and platform were erected against her wishes, she adds. The law firm of Patton & Wiedemann represents Barbara Bingham.

Deny Indebtedness

Denial that they are in any way indebted to J. C. Drake for work on a city street under a contract is made by G. K. Kohlberger and others in their answer and cross petition filed in common pleas court this morning. The defendants are represented by the law firm of Guthery, Strelitz & Guthery.

Files Ruling

A motion filed in the divorce action of Margaret E. Holt against Elias M. Holt yesterday asks the court to modify previous orders in the case and give Elias M. Holt custody of their child. The law firm of Doolittle & Doolittle represents Holt.

The eye-winking stuff is a trifle strong, but maybe nothing is impossible to a fish able to survive a name like that!

When Opinion Is Divided.

There is a remarkably equal division of opinion concerning the results of Premier Laval's visit to Washington. Thus, conflicting accounts of French opinion opinion appear in two large New York City newspapers maintaining Paris bureaus.

"French parties join in praises of Laval's work," asserts one, while the other says: "French see little achieved by Laval." Editorial comment quoted from important French newspapers reveals the cause of the confusion. It is impossible to determine just what the French opinion is. Similar disagreement is evident in Austria, England and Germany.

The United States seems to want to be hopeful, without quite understanding why or how. Unable to point out tangible things accomplished by the conversations, it has turned to intangibles. Cordiality and improved relationship are praised, and it is not unreasonable to say that nothing more important could have been accomplished. While the French can not be expected to attach so much importance to improved relationships, since they were not the hosts, there is reason to believe that they, too, are aware of the possibilities of improved relationships. "Pertinax," one of the most able French political commentators, writes: "For the first time a French minister has achieved in America a great personal success."

It is, no doubt, best to leave the determination of what actually was accomplished in the way of world stabilization, debt settlement, reparations, disarmament and the gold standard to those in direct charge of international relations. They seem to be about equally divided in their decisions, and that leaves the mass of people free to enlarge, if they please, upon things of the spirit. Where opinion based on actual evidence is ranged on opposite sides, opinion based on imponderables usually is in no great danger of going wrong if it runs in a strong optimistic vein. Premier Laval's visit to the United States will be productive of good, therefore, until something happens to produce a contrary effect.

Consider the City's Welfare.

With the close of the municipal campaign near at hand, it may be well to point out that Tuesday's election will do more than determine those who are to conduct the affairs of the city government; it will throw light on the civic patriotism of the city electorate.

In presidential and state elections, wherein the candidates are not known to the voters generally, the natural tendency is for the voter to favor the candidate sponsored by his or her party. In municipal elections, and this is especially true in municipal elections in cities the size of our own, there is little excuse for the voters not to have acquired knowledge of the qualifications of the candidates on the various tickets, and in such elections civic patriotism should prompt the electors to vote for the candidates they down in their hearts believe will best serve the interests of the community regardless of what their political faiths may be.

This is not presented for partisan purposes, nor do we hope that it will have any influence whatever on the intensely partisan, but it may and should have effect—at least, we hope it will—upon the voter who is willing to subrogate party interest to the best interests of the city, and cause him to think a bit, be the political result what it may.

The various candidates—whether on the city, judicial or school board tickets—should be judged by their records as men and standing as citizens. The test should not be determined by the desire of any candidate to attain preferment, but by his qualifications for filling the position he seeks and his honor, honesty and uprightness as a man.

The time is here when all of major years in our community should realize—what many of us have long failed to realize—that, while we have within our limits many big business enterprises, our city in size and importance outranks all of them, as they are but parts of which it is the whole, and that to conduct its affairs we should select the very best talent which has qualified by primary or petition for the voters' favor.

If this thought were always kept in mind at city primaries as well as on election day, many of the ills from which the municipalities of Ohio suffer would disappear, despite the handicap the primary has proved to economical, effective city government.

Let the voter be guided by his knowledge of and trust in the candidate rather than by the partisan claims made in behalf of the candidate.

The Navy League Hunts Friends.

The Navy league, a private organization, has foregone discretion and insulted President Hoover in a statement condemning the administration's naval policy. The league has accused Mr. Hoover of allowing humanitarian and pacific intentions to lead him into exhibiting an "abysmal ignorance" of why navies are maintained. His proposal to immunize seaborne food supplies during war time, if carried out, would make "for bigger and bloodier wars," the league says. It declares that the American naval policy is being "subordinated" to the policies of other naval powers.

This is the Navy league's way of hunting for friends out in the great beyond where people never see ships, except in pictures, and wonder, when they hear the phrase "big navy," who the United States is preparing to fight. The league must actually believe that the public is going to jump up and down in admiration for its attack on the chief executive of the nation. Certainly nothing less than that could have tempted it into making such a rash play for favor.

It will be disappointed. The people haven't anything in particular to hold against the Navy league, but they don't like the tone of its accusation that President Hoover has no right to make decisions about naval affairs. They can easily muster a round of applause for Mr. Hoover's demand that the Navy league spokesman apologize for his accusation. If there's going to be a fight in Washington between the President and the "big navy" group, the "hinterland" will line up behind the men it elected to run the government, not the private group that is trying to run him. The people haven't anything against the navy, but they are developing a heartly dislike for the Navy league.

From Washington comes announcement that Senator Fess will serve as chairman of the Republican national committee up to the date of the convention next June. A CHALLENGE TO THE NATION.

Editorial Opinion.

IL DUCE SAYS SOMETHING.

The bitter denunciation of the Treaty of Versailles uttered by Signor Mussolini at Naples on Sunday synchronized so perfectly with the arrival of his foreign minister, Signor Grandi, at Berlin that the coincidence can not have been expected to escape notice.

A good deal of water has flowed down the Tiber and the Rhine since the war. The traditional friendship of Italy and Germany has revived under fertilization of France's aggressive self-assertion. As far as the general European situation goes, Signor Mussolini has as good as pledged himself to walk hand in hand with Germany toward disarmament and escape from the burden of war debts and reparations. At Geneva next year Germany and Italy may be looked for on the same side of the table.

Curiously enough it is Signor Mussolini, whose frank utterances in the past have given him abroad the reputation of being a firebrand, who now most vigorously proclaims the growing belief that the way to disarmament and economic rehabilitation lies through revision of the Treaty of Versailles. A decade's experience with that document, which may have been the least the Allied nations could have been prevailed upon to ratify in 1919, clearly proves that it can not be enforced indefinitely without disaster. The problem is to repair the structure of the treaty without bringing it down about the world's ears. — Detroit Free Press, October 29.

OUR CHIEF JUSTICE.

That Mr. Hughes is neither a conservative nor a liberal, but apparently an almost perfect judge, willing to consider every individual case on its merits, and capable of so doing, is now the astonishing finding of the misled people and the misled liberals.

Sutherland, Butler, McReynolds and Van Devanter are a conservative bloc of four on the supreme bench. Holmes, Bandeis and Stone are a liberal bloc of three opposite them. Consequently the balance is held by Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Roberts, who repeatedly have demonstrated their disinterestedness, and their willingness to interpret law in the light of modern problems. Chief Justice Hughes decided for labor an injunction proceeding under the railway labor act of 1926; he wrote a dissenting opinion when Justice Roberts sided with the conservatives in refusing citizenship to Professor Macintosh, of Yale; he cast the deciding vote against the Minnesota "press gag" act; he joined the liberal bloc in upholding the constitutionality of the Indiana chain-store tax; he sided with the liberals in the "red flag" case coming out of California.

All this has happened in the less than two years that Mr. Hughes has been chief justice, and it is sufficient to assure forward-looking people that he can not be stampeded—that he sees good in the new, yet clings to the best in the old. If it were possible always to secure such a man as Charles Evans Hughes, the country could safely get along with one man on the supreme bench instead of nine.—Portland Oregonian.

Neglect of Ills Is a Human Failing.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

If a man is taken suddenly ill, he consults a doctor. The severity of the symptoms makes him seek aid. When the ailment, regardless of its cause, lingers on for a long time, there is a tendency to neglect it. The victim gets used to the symptoms and tries to forget the trouble.

As a result of negligence, many diseases become chronic. The term "chronic disease" is given to any ailment that has persisted over a long period of time, for months or years.

At a recent medical meeting, it was estimated that two per cent. of the population is constantly sick. It was stated that the economic loss resulting from chronic illness has been fixed at about $45,000,000 per year. I can not understand why, in spite of the vast amount of suffering and unhappiness caused by chronic diseases, so many persons continue their neglect.

Frequently, one who suffers from a chronic disease has no pain. Since pain is not present, the physician is not consulted. This is an unfortunate attitude to take. You should not regard pain as the only possible symptom of trouble.

Men have died of heart disease who never had pain in the heart. Many have died of diabetes and never had pain. Cancer can start and go on for years without causing any pain.

Statistics show us that the health of many an individual is wrecked by rheumatism due to infected teeth. The original trouble did not cause pain because the roots had been killed.

High blood pressure, another common symptom of disease, can go on for years without causing any pain. Many cases of tuberculosis exist for months without any sign of pain.

Unfortunately, many people believe in the old saying, "Never trouble trouble until trouble troubles you." Their attitude is that if there is anything the matter with them, they do not want to know of it.

This is not a sign of courage. It is acting too much like the ostrich who hides his head when the enemy approaches. Since he can not see the enemy, he imagines himself to be safe.

The medical profession is your protection against these enemies to health. Seek out your physician, consult with him, and he will give you the necessary directions to maintain health and happiness.

Sir James Dewar.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

To the general public, no doubt, Dewar is known, if at all, as the inventor of the thermos bottle. It was he who first succeeded in making a vacuum flask, using charcoal to make a vacuum in the double wall of vessels of light metals, such as copper, nickel and brass. He invented the Dewar bulb, which is a double-walled, glass tube, with the air removed from between the walls. In this way a vacuum is left, thus creating the conditions which prevents the contents of the bottle or tube from losing either their heat or their cold. Dewar's bulb was the forerunner of the immensely useful and now indispensable thermos bottle. Unfortunately for Dewar, his invention was commercially exploited by another nation.

The invention described above is a mere by-product of the extensive chemical researches and discoveries of Sir James Dewar. He was born at Kincardine-on-Forth, Scotland, on September 20, 1842. His education was received at the University of Edinburgh where he was appointed assistant to Lord Playfair, then professor of chemistry. From Lord Playfair he received the principal part of his training in chemistry. In 1868 he had a brief tutelage at Ghent under one of the leading chemists of his time, Kekule. The researches carried on there resulted in the theory of the pyridine ring, associated with his name—which has aided chemists to produce artificially some of the most complex of organic substances.

Dewar's name will always be associated with the subject of low temperatures. For many years chemists had busied themselves with the problems of solidifying and liquifying gases. As early as 1824 Bussy had succeeded in liquifying chlorine, ammonia, and cyanogen, and also in solidifying the last. The chief difficulty was to reach sufficiently low temperatures, far lower than the minus 65 degrees Centigrade attained by Bussy. Other scientists worked on these problems; and by 1845 the amazing and ingenious Faraday had succeeded in liquifying all the gases then known except hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, nitric oxide and marsh gas.

The most promising and effective method was that known as the regenerative method. In 1874, by the use of this method, Houston succeeded in producing liquid air. Dewar used this method in achieving some of his most important results. He was the first scientist to produce large quantities of liquid oxygen; and by means of the Dewar tube, already described, he was enabled to store the liquid for long periods of time and so use it as a cooling agent.

Hydrogen, next to helium, is the most elusive of all gases. The experiments carried out by Dewar in liquifying hydrogen were both difficult and dangerous. At last he succeeded in bringing the temperature to minues 258 degrees. At this point the gas transformed into a solid resembling frozen foam. At two degrees lower, which Dewar succeeded in reaching, air and every other gas but one, namely helium, becomes solid. Dewar spent some years on the problem of liquifying helium. He proceeded far enough to be able to prophesy correctly the properties of liquid helium. He was, however, anticipated in his work by Professor Onnes, who succeeded in producing liquid helium at Leyden.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Quakers and Unearned Increment.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The Ohio territorial legislature clashed with Governor Arthur St. Clair on more matters than the right to establish counties, two other principal subjects of dispute between the legislative and executive powers in the second territorial legislature, sitting in 1801 and 1802, being the Quakers and the taxation of lands of non-residents.

In his message to the legislature, General St. Clair called attention to the fact that large numbers of Quakers were being attracted to the territory as settlers; that they were a desirable class of people and citing their conscientious scruples against bearing arms, recommended that they be exempted from rendering military service and from fines for failure to report at musters.

He had received many complaints from non-resident owners of lands in Ohio to the effect that their holdings were being taxed onerously, and the governor favored a lowering of taxes.

As to the Quakers the legislature took no action but let it be known that it was felt by members that it was not right for any people to locate where armed defense was necessary to their proper protection and refuse to contribute toward that defense, but to enjoy what was furnished by the efforts of others.

There was an explicit expression of the opinion of the legislature as to the lowering of tax rates on non-residents' land, and in it, what was probably the first stand in Ohio against the enjoyment of unearned increment. It was pointed out to the governor that by reason of actual settlement in the state and improvements made, the value of the lands held by non-residents was being constantly enhanced through the efforts and sacrifices of others, and that because of this unearned increase in value, when these non-residents sold any of their lands, they profited greatly—so largely that they could well afford to pay all that was being charged in taxes on their property in the territory.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 31—Any time there is a loose drunk in a cafe and I am dining there, sooner or later he will be pulling up a chair to mine. And I will hear how unhappily he is married, how many millions he lost in the crash or what a big bum I am.

I never escape. There is something about me—doubtless my frankly open countenance—that will draw a souce, as steel springs to magnet, from rollicking companions across the room either to weep on my shoulder or to inquire what the scandao I mean sneering at him?

As a matter of fact I neither look left nor right. I have never even seen a waiter's face. A timid mouse nibbling at cheese could not be more unobtrusive than I in a public dining room. Nor could Lord Fauntleroy himself be more the perfect little gentleman.

If any one kicks my chair in passing I make out it's my fault. If I am brought something I did not order I wouldn't complain for anything. I do not add up my check for fear it will hurt some one's feelings. And I tip-toe out so as not to disturb other customers.

Yet in spite of this I'm forever getting into hot water when eating out. In the Victor Hugo in Los Angeles one evening a lady lost her purse. I was several tables away, and when the search began I got up, just as a gesture, to shake myself like a wet dog. And if I wasn't sitting on it!

In the old Gerdes in Cincinnati one after midnight I sat alone enjoying a bowl of hot milk and crackers. And trying to figure a sure shot at Latonia. The next I knew firemen were walking ma Spanish through the basement. The place had been afire a half hour.

Then there was the moonlit evening Mike Hogg and I wandered into a dining room in Palm Beach. We ate what was served, supposing it a table d'hote meal, and were having a second helping of dessert when a gavel tapped. We suddenly found ourselves uninvited guests at an undertakers' banquet.

Such dining-out horrors were refreshed by memory by an experience last night. It was in a garishly lit place off Broadway. There was one of those walking-around stews in circulation again, too. So far as I could see he was in love with everybody in the place with one exception. I was naturally that exception. I happened to be wearing a sky-blue shirt and collar with darker blue tie and handkerchief to match. Steadying himself and bestowing an appraising glance he mumbled: "All in blue"—and lurched on.

That was O K with me. I'm used to a beating about what I wear. I can take it. Anyway I was having an affair with the best pair of lamb chops I ever tasted. But it didn't satisfy him. In ten minutes he was in again. "Lissen, Little Boy Blue," he began. "don't you know you'll go plumb to rack and ruin drinking all that iced tea?" And I laughed that off—from the teeth out.

* * *

Teetering and holding to a chair he inquired: "Mind if I sit?" I didn't mind if he did lots of things, including a nip up off the Empire tower, but I nodded welcome. Then he tried to light a cigaret and the way he handled a lighted match made me sigh that celluloid collars went out. Finally he located me again through a one eyed squint. "Why don't you," he inquired "get yourself all beared up pretty like me and schottische or something. Don't be a hunk of cold potato all your life."

* * *

Sometimes one is able to squelch a stew by upstaginess so I high toned: "Gentlemen should never pontificate over trivia in public cafes." Then I winked at my companion and continued my romance with a chop. He was weaving at that one and sat as though completely benumbed. He was almost forgotten when I happened to look up and two tears were stealing down his cheeks. I'm one of those softies who melts at tears. I went over, patted his shoulder and said: "See here, old man, don't go on like that, everything——"

* * *

At that he struggled up, clenched his fist and rushed at me muttering: "Nobody is going to call my poor dead grandmother a dirty name." That explains the Human Cannon Ball many saw shooting through Forty-Ninth street last evening. And was I going to town!—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

He Did It, Anyway.

Al Capone's haberdashery bills prove that you can make silk shirts out of blind pigs.—New York Times.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Oct. 31—It is the proud boast of Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, and his merry men of the George Washington Bicentennial commission that they can find in the writings of the first President a quotation to fit almost any situation.

High atop the Washington building in the capital the "Hon. Sol" and his historians do their work. Their goal is to so decentralize this celebration in 1932 that every hamlet, village, town and city in the country will take part.

They have gone further than that. Their latest effort is to have every department store in the country take part. A twenty-page pamphlet has gone out to these stores outlining in minute detail a plan for cooperation.

Nothing has been omitted. All that a department store owner or manager has to do is to start obeying instructions, given on page one and by the time he gets through on page twenty he will have succeeded in making his customers George Washington-minded.

For Bloom instructs him on how to set up organization in every department from art to handkerchiefs. He lists each item that the various departments should have on hand.

Even the beauty parlor is advised to study up on colonial hairdressing and get in a new supply of wigs.

As evidence of how thorough the plan is there even is included a recommendation that the wall spaces over the store's elevator entrances should be decorated with something connected with the life of George Washington.

But with it all Bloom makes it plain that his commission has no interest in advancing the commercial needs of any one group. Its only desire is to see that manufacturers and retail stores are in a position to serve their customers by supplying the merchandise they will require for their participation in the celebration.

That's all——.

Bloom's department store pamphlet was issued just about the time President Hoover was conferring with congressional leaders at the White House as to the best means of combating the economic and financial despondency the country now is feeling.

One of the reasons advanced for present conditions is that there are too many people with money reluctant to put it in circulation. Steps were taken to release such funds.

Bloom and his men made good their George Washington quotation claim. The first thing that smacks you in the eye when you examine this pamphlet is a Washington quote:

"It is not a custom with me to keep money to look at."

Just Imagination.

Due to a curious astigmatism, Geneva really sees herself in the Manchurian picture.—Washington Post.

Culture Gaged By Funeral Customs

By The Schaffner-Queen Co.

Funeral customs denote the modes of thought, state of manners, and degrees of civilization existing among the various races of people.

A nation without traditions—without monuments—is sure to be found plunged into barbarism. The peoples who have survived in history are those who have left substantial records indicating thoughtful and intelligent burial practices

At no period, have funeral services received such rational care and attention as now—nor, correlatively, has culture ever reached such a high degree of enlighienment

In this country, the up-to-date funeral director reflects in every detail of his service the present high state of American culture He performs an infinite variety of services for families in distress, with a skill and efficiency that can come only from paramount experience and education, as well as perience and education, as well as perfection of equipment.

Indian Summer

JUST when and what is Indian summer, we would like to know There are those who claim it has come and gone and others lay claim to know that we haven't had our squaw winter as yet As nearly as we can find out the 'spell' is associated with harvest time and one authority refers to Indian summer as that period in autumn characterized by calm and an absence of rain Of course the Indians must have had something to do with it or it wouldn't have been called by this particular name and some folks say the Redskins celebrated the season with a particular rite and the smoke of their camp fires hung lazily in the air For our part we can not understand why more poets aren't born in this particular season than any other for with the gorgeous weather the riotous coloring of the leaves and the tender and luscious extract of the wineeap and its ilk, what more would it take to make a three ring literary circus

Sentiment

THERE'S a little bit of sentiment in all of us be we hard-boiled, pessimistic crusty or otherwise. And we believe that (with the exception of people and personal treasures) trees get the call for bringing forth words that might be just a little silly if they were not so sincere We recall one tree which once sheltered a village blacksmith shop to say nothing of the village kids, and were it to pass into the land of firewood there would be more than us shed tears. Not that there was any great Romeo and Juliet scenes enacted there nor are there hearts and arrows hewn in the bark, it is just a great old tree. And, on a couple of more thoughts, it was that self same tree upon one of whose noble limbs was fastened the boat that bore the late Bryan and Sewell in effigy up Salt Creek one year just about this time

Hallowe'en

THERE were just about 20 people who would gladly have exchanged places with one little Hallowe'ener last night when she stepped in on the diners in a restaurant, just starting out on a big night. Everybody guessed it was her first experience mingling with the merrymakers, and was she thrilled. She shook hands with the friend upon whom she came to call and to the amusement of everyone, very frankly told her name and went on her way

t of Venice's Past

wakened the following to a benign day of summer sunshine and dly air. Opening her w that quick, excited mething pleasant and t to happen.

She was going to stay launch herself, a gay ng butterfly. After her r she wrote a letter ngston and one to aunt them of her decision d for several months. wn to the desire for a ene and faces. Later pping of the envelopes box she felt as if an ep in her future was en.

of something about to l very well, but after andering about alone, to a soul except the the maitre d'hotel at Grand, a clerk or two re Trust, and waiters er at this cafe or that r heart began to sink. feel herself caught in from which no opening things she wanted to ien she returned to e wanted to be able to ly about Pigalle's, he Peroquet and the s at Longchamps and t So-and-So and Lord t. But how could she? owly along the Place one afternoon she er those unhappy e must shake them Cafe de la Paix she bit wearily and half- dered a champagne he eyed the passing forced interest. Here rement, color.

Venice began to absorb it all with genuine enjoyment and to forget the slow sense of unavoidable stagnation that was creeping over her.

Finally her gaze swept her companions at the neighboring tables. On her left an English couple quite evidently indulged in heated words over something that had occurred the previous night.

"My word," he exclaimed, you are a nagger."

"That's better than being immoral," she snapped.

Venice's eyes meandered to the table at her right. A young man, shabbily but neatly dressed, vaguely debonair, a trim, little sandy moustache, brown eyes that twinkled and a wide humorous mouth. You felt that his clothes had been very expensive once, but it was a long time ago. There were handsome links in his frayed, blue cuffs. His glance met Venice's with unexpected directness and she felt herself blushing uncomfortably.

"Parlez vous francais?" he asked with such an unmistakably American accent that Venice smiled and answered, "No, not very well."

Without so much as a by-your-leave he slid over into the chair beside her.

"That's a relief. I'm tired of struggling with this appalling tongue."

"You're an American, aren't you?"

"Yes. And so are you. We can't disguise the twang, can we?"

"No."

"What are you drinking? You must have another with me."

"A champagne cocktail."

It all seemed quite natural and easy. Venice did not feel in the least embarrassed or nervous. He was a nice, every day fellow-countryman and she knew a tremendous relief in exchanging words with some one who was not later to receive a tip from her.

"Whoops, dearie, an expensive American!"

He laughed and hailing a waiter, ordered her a cocktail and a beer for himself.

"Are you on a holiday?" she asked?

"No, I've been over here for several months. And now I'm too hard-up to go home so I'm staying. I came over to take a position which they didn't hold for me. I haven't been able to get anything else."

He spoke cheerily. His dilemma didn't seem to matter much to him one way or another.

"Hard luck," said Venice. You couldn't feel sorry for him somehow.

"But Paris is a grand town. Who cares about being exiled in Paradise!"

"I love it too. There's something —well, you can't put your finger on it, but there's a fascination, an allure about Paris. It's like wine in your veins. Once you've caught the glow of it you're slightly intoxicated."

"Nicely put. You're a bright girl."

"Oh, no."

"Are you over on your own?"

"Y-yes."

"What are you going to do with yourself?"

"Everything."

"That sounds sweeping and exciting. Another cocktail?"

"Are you going to have another beer?"

"Of course."

"The people passing. Couldn't you watch them forever?" Venice made a comprehensive gesture towards the street. They lapsed into silence watching the parade.

Venice looked at her wrist watch. It's almost 7. I must go," she said.

"What for? You should never hurry in indolent Paris."

"It doesn't quite fit, does it? But I must."

"Garcon," he called. Then he turned towards her with a smile that lit up his entire face and positively charmed the cockles of the heart. "Look here, could you pay for this binge? And I had two beers at my table. I'm stony broke."

Venice laughed. You couldn't resent him.

"Is that why you spoke to me?"

"Primarily. But I'm glad I did anyway. You're a nice girl."

She handed him 50 francs. Suddenly she caught his arm.

"Wait a minute," she said excitedly. "Let's have another each. There's something I want to talk to you about." Her face was vivid with an unexpected idea.

The Stars Say—

Sunday, Nov. 1

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds testimonies of lively activities in many directions, although these may not be read as benignant, excepting for those engaged in literary or other cultural pursuits. There may be much disturbance, excitement and commotion, calling for calm deliberation and discretion.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very active year, with much of profit in literary pursuits or certain lines of business, but generally there is forecast much excitement, unrest, agitation and unforeseen conflict and frustration. With calmness, discretion, resolution and perspicacity affairs may be maneuvered to moderate success. Curb tongue and temper. A child born on this day may be talented, versatile and ambitious, but prone to excitement, clamor, unrest and strife unless disciplined in infancy.

Notable Nativity: J. W. Packard, manufacturer.

Monday, Nov. 2

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST is one of extremely lively and interesting developments both in matters of business enterprise as well as in domestic, social and affectional relations. All the forces and faculties may be found under excellent stimuli to aggressive measures in business and high pressure in the social or friendly engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may plan for a year in which the spirit of enterprise and initiative may be used to good advantage. There is sign of highly unpleasant energies to be exerted in bold strokes in business and in the actual attainment of the ambitions and aspirations in purely personal matters. Bold, dynamic and commanding individuality may be under this impetus but prudence and friendly and graceful intervention. A child born on this day should be carefully trained with much patience and tact.

Clever Coiffeurs for The Bob That Is Growing Out

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

Some clever new hair arrangements have been created, and for many of my readers who are planning a change in coiffeur and must rely upon their own ingenuity, I'll describe some of the more practical hair arrangements that may be worn for working hours as well as for evening.

The golden or platinum blonde with short bob calls for only a faint suggestion of a wave over the crown of the head. The hair is parted on the right side and the ends are brought around the back of the head, where, just behind the left ear, it is held in place by a hair clip. The ends are curled into uncombed ringlets for the day, and for evening festivities this combing takes on a gayer mood by combing the hair into silver or gold fluffiness. The clip, too, may be brilliant for evening.

For the longer bob, and this appears far more flattering with dark hair, the wave is a little deeper, then brought around the back of the head and formed into a loose roll just behind the ear. The hair may be parted on either the left or right side, but the loose roll should always appear on the side of the head opposite the part. Here, to, the clip was in evidence, but it appeared more tailored than that worn with the short blonde hair.

Another hair arrangements was created specifically for the fragile blonde type with almost shoulder-length hair The hair was parted on the right side (at the outer corner of the eye) and showed one wide wave just above the ears that fell into a loose dip over the temples. The hair was shorter over the ears and made veil-like by having been combed with the fine teeth of the comb.

The hair across the back of the head showed only one wide wave, and the ends of the hair were curled into uncombed ringlets, adding a touch of youthfulness and softness. This coiffeur may be worn by the young matron, or her younger sister with the same flattering results.

With the newer permanent waving machines it is possible to put one, two or three soft waves in the hair in place of the narrow, deep waves often resulting. These newer permanents are by far the most satisfactory as well as flattering to the majority, since they may easily be "set" at home, and it does seem that most of the newer hair arrangements call for only faint suggestions or outlines of waves with moderately long bobs.

And aren't we all happy that girls can again be girls and that the strictly boyish bob and mannish mode is of the past?

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

An Urgent Phone Call for Lillian from Mrs. Brixton.

LONG experience with Katie has taught me to speak and act quickly when her supersensitive feelings are wounded. If she were less valuable to me, less faithful and devoted, I never should palliate the atrocious breaches of discipline of which she is often guilty. But I long since learned that I either must put up with my little maid "as is" or get rid of her altogether. There is no middle course possible, no hope of changing her except for a gradual mellowing which has come with the years. She is neither so tempestuous nor so lachrymal as she was when she first came to us.

Dicky sometimes teasingly tells me that the "first fifty years with Katie will be the hardest" and that after she celebrates her golden anniversary of service with us, I may hope to see some definite improvement in her.

Katie Starts Luncheon

But it was not of Dicky's gibe or Katie's tantrums that I was thinking as I answered her plaint. It was the wounded look in her eyes, the hurt tone in her voice, the remembrance of her unfailing willingness to drop everything at any request of mine for personal service, which set the tempo of my reply.

"You silly, silly child," I said tenderly, smiling at her, "You know you wouldn't cook for anybody else but me, and if you did want to, I wouldn't let you go and do it, so stop talking foolishly and fix me something nice in a hurry, will you please?"

The storm clouds vanished from her face, and she grinned widely at me.

"Vat you vant?" she queried. "I haf something you like for loonch — dot jellied consoomme und creamed sheecken in patties and crocodile pears for salad und peach custard und everything in ice box and I can warm sheecken in two shakes of leetle sheep's tail—you tink dot enoof, huh?"

"Yes, Katie, I think I may keep from starving on that menu," I told her, making my words an excuse for the smile at her recital and her ludicrous culinary terms which I otherwise could not have kept from my lips.

Katie giggled.

"You so focny, Meesses Graham. You shoost make me doobls over. Vere you want to eet. In dining room?"

There was a wistful note in her voice which I comprehended and upon which I acted promptly.

"No, no, indeed, Katie," I said, quickly. "It would be ever so much cosier to have it here at the table in the kitchen. Then, too, I am in a great hurry and it would be a waste of time to carry my lunch into the dining room. Just get it ready as quickly as you can right here."

She had opened the icebox as I spoke and the next instant put a dish of creamed chicken upon the table. Next she lighted her gas oven and returning to the table spooned the chicken into the flaky patties which are one of her culinary masterpieces. She put them in a pan and placed them in the oven. Then when she had shut the door, she straightened herself, and looked over at me worriedly.

Madge Relieves Lillian

"Those tings take five, ten meenits," she said. "Eef you only tell me before."

"I didn't wake up until a few minutes ago, Katie," I told her "and I can wait ten minutes very easily. Give me the jellied consomme now and I'll eat it very slowly."

"I set all your dishes outt first," she said shrewdly. "Dan dot take more time."

She busied herself with laying out the individual china service which I had learned from observation that she keeps sacred to my use. Her movements were dawdling. Totally unlike her usually brisk ones and it was not until almost ten minutes had passed that she set before me the jellied consomme which was to be my first course. So well had she timed it that the piping hot chicken patties and the rest of my luncheon were ready as soon as I had finished my consomme.

"That was a wonderful luncheon, Katie," I said when I had finished. "Thank you so much. And I want you to know that I appreciate your stopping your work and taking care of me that way."

"Vy not for I stop my vork?" Katie demanded. "You always take care of everybody joost like yun angel dot you are. Eef I no stop eet you someting to eat somebody ought keek me all round Kostchein."

I patted her shoulder as I went out of the kitchen.

"You never fail me, Katie," I said, and the little tribute was heartfelt.

"And now," I said to Lillian sternly, when I had come back into the living room, "I've fulfilled my part of the bargain, Katie has stuffed me till I am a sister to the hoptoad. Now you go to bed. Any particular instructions on this job?"

"Nothing except to sit out here and be in readiness for anything Katherine may want," she replied. "And now that it's all over, I don't mind admitting that I'm mighty glad to have you take over the job fro a few hours. I'm dead tired and I don't care who knows it."

A Telephone Call

"A few hurs," I said indignantly. "There's nobody going to disturb you for the next twelve hours unless it's over my dead body. You're going to sleep the clock round, Lady, or I'll know the reason why!"

I meant every word of the promise, and was all the more chagrined three hours later when Kate answered a ring of the telephone that brought to me an urgent message.

"Meez Brixton she says she must spik to Meester Underwood right away qveeck."

My little maid's eyes reflected my query:

Had anything happened to Marion?
